By Mr. Mark Fangman

As a teacher, I have found that these books are great for kids in many different grades, and reading levels. I have students in the 6th grade that love these books, and I also have struggling readers in the 10th grade that really like the Tucket series. These books are full of exciting adventures that most kids really enjoy!

Surprisingly touching bond between a boy and his hero

By J. Anderson

Generally I am not a fan of Westerns, but I absolutely loved Tucket's Travels. Though I enjoyed the adventure and historical aspects, I was most touched by the unusual and noble bond between Mr. Grimes, the one-armed mountain man, and Mr. Tucket. One doesn't come across this special kind of friendship often in today's literature. I was reminded of the old classic, Shane. I am pleased that in this day and age there are still people writing about not only that theme, but also of individuality and the confidence that is gained when one is competent. What an excellent model to hold up for young people today. Parents can definitely feel good about letting their children read this book.
